CANADA'S NATIONAL-JEWISH NEWSPAPER

Price - 10¢ Authorized as Second Class Mail, Post Office Department, Ottawa, and for payment of postage in cash. • LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY JEWISH NEWSPAPER IN CANADA • TORONTO & MONTREAL, FRIDAY, JANUARY 1st, 1965

NEW NAZI PLOT HERE

NEW CONSUL — The Hon. Gabriel Lourie, Israel's new consul in Toronto, who assumed his duties last month.
Mr. Lourie is a former instructor and commander of the Haganah. He graduated from the Herzlia High School in Tel Aviv and continued his studies at the School of Law and Economics. During the War of Independence, he served in the Negev where he attained the rank of Major. Later he became Aide to the Chief of the General Staff.
Last year Mr. Lourie joined the Foreign Service.

ESHKOL TO AFRICA

JERUSALEM. — Prime Minister Levi Eshkol is likely to visit East Africa early this year. He is expected to go to Kenya, Malagasy, Tanganyika and Uganda, either at the end of January or at the beginning of March. Arrangements have still to be finalized with the states.

It is intended that Mr. Eshkol should make his African tour while en route to Europe for a projected meeting with West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard. It would be Mr. Eshkol's first visit to Africa.

The date and venue of Mr. Eshkol's meeting with Chancellor Erhard is yet to be fixed although both leaders have expressed their readiness to meet.

AMERICAN JEWISH LEADERS ACCUSE BONN OF DUPLICITY

NEW YORK — (CJN) — The West German Government was accused last week end by the leaders of 18 major American Jewish organizations of "evasion of its moral responsibilities" for refusing to extend the statute of limitations on Nazi war crimes.

The charge was contained in a letter to Gerhard Schroeder, West German Foreign Minister, who had rejected an invitation to meet with Jewish leaders on this issue during his visit to the U.S. earlier this month.

The letter was the latest in an exchange of correspondence between the American Jewish leaders and Dr. Schroeder. It was mailed last Friday December 18 and made public here last week end to permit what a spokesman termed "a proper interval for its receipt in Bonn."

Label Katz of New Orleans, president of B'nai B'rith and acting chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations, signed the letter.

ERHARD STATEMENT

BONN (JCNS) — The early establishment of fullscale diplomatic relations with Israel has been ruled out by the West German Chancellor, Dr. Ludwig Erhard. He told reporters that the Bonn Government did not plan to solve the problem of its relations with Israel "in one jump."

He said that the Government was endeavouring to find a compromise which would further German relations with Israel without constituting a challenge to the Arabs. West Germany was anxious that the Arabs should not recognise East Germany as a result of Bonn's recognition of the State of Israel.

He suggested that the next step in German-Israeli relations might be the establishment of a trade mission in the Jewish State—but any step had to be carefully planned and considered in the interests of Middle East peace.

He repeated his readiness for a meeting with the Israeli Prime Minister, but said that no date had yet been set for this meeting.

Between 20 and 30 German mechanics and technicians have taken up jobs in the Egyptian arms industry within the past few weeks, replacing those whose contracts have run out, according to reports current here. It is said that none of the Germans is a rocket expert.

Dispatches from Cairo claim that there was a "flood of applications" from West Germans for the vacant posts, but that only a small group was chosen because no expansion in the Egyptian arms industry was planned for the time being.

Says "NEIN!" — Dr. Ludwig Erhard, West German Chancellor declares himself against diplomatic ties with Israel.

Scarborough's Would-Be Hitler Against The News

TERRORIZES THE CJN ADVERTISERS

The international Nazi conspiracy which recently has intensified its operations in Canada began a vicious campaign last week against The Canadian Jewish News. Because of its courageous stand in the battle against the importation of Hitlerite ideology and Nazi methods into this country, The Canadian Jewish News has been singled out by the would-be little Fuehrer of Scarborough as the main target of his newest drive to disseminate ill will and hatred among the people living in this city.

The most recent step directed against the Jewish community by the notorious rabble rouser of Scarborough is the distribution of a circular letter to all advertisers of The Canadian Jewish News, asking them to refrain from patronizing this newspaper.

The circular, disseminated here, states that The Canadian Jewish News advocates "the seduction of young Gentile girls by Jews", one of the familiar Hitlerite obscenities printed against Jewish publications in the Nazi press prior and during World War II.

The Toronto Nazis, who consider The Canadian Jewish News their number One Enemy, state in this leaflet:

"Zionism, which is supported by The Canadian Jewish News, is viciously anti-Arab."

The same smear letter, sent to our advertisers through Her Majesty's Mail, includes the following typically Nazi phrases:

• The Canadian Jewish News is anti-Arab, anti-German and subversively pro-Zionist. "It is an ironic thing that the Jews who have been given unlimited privileges in this country should still have a greater concern for the welfare of Israel before Canada. They purchase Israel Bonds rather than Canada Savings Bonds; vacation in Israel rather than (in) our beautiful Canada; invest their money in Israel rather than (in) Canada . . ."

• "Also, The Canadian Jewish News supports certain bills before Parliament, which would destroy our democratic way of life. I refer specifically to the Klein-Walker Bill and the Orlikow Bill now before the House External Affairs Committee. These bills would restrict the freedom of the press and speech."

• The policy of The Canadian Jewish News is damaging Canada's relations "with our allies".

The appeal concludes with the following Hitlerite garbage:

"And, being an honorable man who is patriotic and a good Christian, I am sure that, these facts brought to your attention, you will refrain from further insertions in this questionable medium. Yours for nation and race . . ."

Maloney and Hess, the legal firm representing The Canadian Jewish News, now is considering legal action in order to defend the interests of this newspaper, as the Nazis here have begun to terrorize its advertisers and organize a boycott against it.

JNF Treats Christians In Israel To Christmas Trees

JERUSALEM (CJN). — The Jewish National Fund distributed gratis Christmas trees to all Christian organizations and institutions in Israel, as well as to schools, convents, monasteries, churches and foreign diplomatic missions.

This gesture has been acknowledged with gratitude by leaders of the Christian minority in the Jewish state.

Despite the border situation, the government issued permits to Israeli Christians and foreign visitors, allowing them to cross the Mandelbaum Gate into Jordan for a 72-hour visit enabling them to participate in Christmas festivities in Bethlehem, which is in Jordan.

Mr. Giuseppe Roncalli, the 70-year-old brother of the late Pope John, was among a group of 100 Italian pilgrims who arrived in Israel to spend Christmas in the Holy Land.

Mr. Roncalli crossed the Mandelbaum Gate for a brief visit to Bethlehem where he spent Christmas Day. Then he returned to Israel.

The group's pilgrimage was organized by the Italian weekly, Oggi.

Most Israeli Christians attended Mass in Nazareth where loudspeakers broadcast Christian services in the City Square.

NEW YEAR THOUGHTS

CANADA: The Jewish community, along with the vast majority of this freedom loving nation, expects the New Year to produce some serious, effective, legislative measures against the small but vociferous group of neo-Nazi agitators. During the last months of 1964, the Jewish community and all liberal minded Canadians constantly have been harassed and insulted by local agents of the international neo-Nazi conspiracy.

Notable errors of judgment were committed regarding the disseminators of intolerance and racial hatred in this country. The most striking example of this laissez faire attitude towards would-be Hitlerites in Canada was the CBC presentation of the Rockwell "Weltanschauung". It is clear now that this inaccurate interpretation of freedom of speech encouraged the Nazi underworld to new activities for the purpose of creating in this country a climate of mutual suspicion among men and women of different racial, ethnic and religious background.

However, putting up with those who preach intolerance has resulted in a second, intense look at the Nazi mafia. The dormant Klein-Walker Bill to outlaw Nazi hatred has been revived, its discussion earnestly resumed before the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Commons.

As the New Year begins, there is universal approbation of legislative steps to curtail, once and for all, the freedom of those who would destroy democracy by promoting an internal strife among Canadians.

USSR: The start of the New Year coincides with a new, intensive Soviet activity in Cairo, Egypt's capital, where the Soviet deputy premier, Alexander Shelepin, has arrived, leading an official delegation bringing gifts to the Arabs, in classic Greek tradition.

These gifts consist of materials which the Arabs (that is, the people of all Arab lands) need least: arms for war.

While the United States keeps filling continuously the bottomless Egyptian well with food worth hundreds of millions of dollars, the USSR, at the same time, is repeating the action which indirectly provoked the Suez Campaign eight years ago: arming the country; inciting the populace against the "imperialists" who dared free missionaries and other innocent people from the so-called Congo rebels.

What is happening in Cairo at this moment requires further study for many who sincerely wish a Soviet change of heart in the paramount issue affecting us all—war or peace. If Moscow honestly desires peace, why should she subsidize war in the Middle East, the Far East and Africa?

While Shelepin (who was involved personally in the first Moscow-Cairo deal) encourages the Egyptians "not to be afraid of the imperialists", Cairo's Voice of the Arabs openly declares that it will support revolutions wherever oppression exists. Of course, these threats are clear. They are commitments to Moscow that arms given to Egypt will be well used; they will not rust but serve to provoke incessantly clashes and local wars.

Moscow's renewed flirtation with Cairo is an open warning to Washington, Paris and London that no appeasement will please the ambitious dictator on the Nile. He is determined to follow the road of adventure and, if a world conflagration ensues (which an Egyptian-Israeli war would amount to), the responsibility will be Moscow's.

So long as the Russians are engaged in these dangerous manoeuvers in the Middle East, no one can trust them when they claim Stalinism is dead

France Condemns Arab Interference

PARIS (JCNFS) — The French public, the Arab Governments and the world at large have been left in no doubt of France's attitude towards the activities of the Arab Boycott Office, now brought to a climax by the drive against the distinguished French soldier, General Pierre Koenig, who heads both the Société Industrielle et Financière des Pétroles and the Alliance de France-Israel.

The Arabs stand condemned of interference in France's internal affairs and, indeed, disrespect for French sovereignty and national dignity.

There is an inevitable difference of opinion in Paris between those who feel that the sharpest official reactions are called for and those who argue against giving the boycott a degree of publicity which might inflate its importance and make it appear more noxious than it has actually succeeded in becoming.

The French Government, while keeping a watchful eye on extra-diplomatic activities by Arab missions, is in no mood for polemics with the Arab Boycott Office, which would have the effect of giving it quasi-diplomatic status.

These considerations can best be left to the French themselves. What can conveniently be noted is that French firmness has in the past frequently precluded crises of this kind.

"WIFE" CLAIMS SHE NEVER SAW HIM

HAIFA. — A new immigrant claims that a woman he met accidentally in the street here is his wife, whom he last saw 20 years ago.

The woman, Mrs. Itta Zuckerman, 54, says she never saw the man in her life, and is married to someone else.

A police spokesman said the case is being investigated, on the man's complaint, to determine whether bigamy has been committed.

Mr. Yanco Goldstein, 51, arrived here three months ago and is now living in Beersheba. While on a visit to Haifa last week he encountered Mrs. Zuckerman in the street. He later told police that she was his wife, who had left their native Rumania in 1945. He had been arrested and was unable to leave until this year. He had been unable to correspond with her and had not known her whereabouts.

Goldstein presented documents to back up his claim while Mrs. Zuckerman brought a wedding certificate showing she had been married here in 1952.

1,000 DENTISTS MEET IN TORONTO

More than a thousand dentists from the United States, Mexico, England, Israel and Canada are meeting this week at Toronto's Royal York for the fifty-seventh annual convention of the Alpha Omega Dental Fraternity. The fraternity, which is the world organization of Jewish dentists, will conclude its sessions today, Friday, January 1st.

Dr. F.G. Stulberg of Toronto is Marshal of the convention; Dr. G. Perlmutter is deputy marshal; Mrs. T. Leslie is ladies' marshal.

The Toronto chapter of the fraternity is host of the convention which opened on Sunday.

Dr. John A. Samuels of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, was elected president, replacing Dr. Marvin C. Goldstein of Atlanta, Ga., outgoing president. At the formal banquet, the main feature of the convention, Dr. Joseph F. Volker was awarded the Alpha Omega Achievement Medal for his contributions to dental science.

This year, Alpha Omega will mark the opening of the Hebrew University-Hadassah School of Dentistry, a project initiated and completed by the fraternity.

HISTADRUT DRIVE OPENS SUNDAY

The dinner inaugurating Toronto's annual Histadrut Campaign will take place at the Beth Tzedec Synagogue this Sunday, January 3rd, at 6:30 p.m.

Dr. Judd Teller of New York, an outstanding orator, author and expert on Russian affairs, will be guest speaker. He also is executive vice president of the American Histadrut Cultural Exchange Institute which serves as a forum for American and Israeli intellectuals.

Dr. Teller has lectured here and in forty states south of the border. As foreign correspondent, he has contributed to many newspapers and periodicals, including the Christian Science Monitor, New York Herald Tribune, Commentary, New Republic, Middle East Journal, Commonwealth, Davar, and others. His books include: Scapegoat of Revolution; The Kremlin, The Jews and The Middle East; An Informal Biography of the Jews.

Upon the occasion of his sixtieth birthday, Mr. Bernard Bloomfield of Montreal, national president of the Israel Histadrut Campaign in Canada, will be presented with an illuminated scroll in appreciation of his devoted leadership.

To Address Torontonians — Dr. Judd L. Teller

ANNUAL DINNER OF TORONTO EITZ CHAIM SCHOOLS — JAN. 10th

The annual dinner of Toronto's Eitz Chaim Schools will take place on Sunday, January 10th, 6:30 p.m., at the Torath Emeth Jewish Center, 1 Viewmount Avenue, according to an announcement made by Harry Korolnek, president.

Rabbi Jacob Weinberg, dean of Toronto's Ner Israel Yeshiva, will be guest speaker.

A large turnout, including prominent leaders of the Jewish community, is expected.

DANISH PREMIER TO ISRAEL

COPENHAGEN (JCNS) — The Danish Prime Minister, Mr. Jens Otto Krag, is to visit Israel for six days from January 3. He has postponed the visit because of a financial crisis in Denmark.

He will be accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Helle Virkner Krag, who is well-known film actress in Denmark. She is of Jewish origin (her maiden name was Lotinga).

● Murray Schisgal, who wrote the hit play, Luv' has been writing ever since he was 21. But he can remember his dark days, until he turned to drama a few years ago with The Typists, and The Tiger. His writings included about 60 short stories and three novels, none of which was published and all quite bad, according to Schisgal.

To support himself, he worked at many jobs: setting up pins in a bowling alley; playing in a band; hanging up dresses in a department store; pushing a hand truck in the garment center.

He went to school at night: Long Island University; Brooklyn Law School; the New School for Social Research. He practiced law for two years but gave it up when he found it was taking too much time and attention from his writing. Then he became a teacher at a high school, where he decided to turn to drama.

● Lena Horne, beautiful 47-year-old Sepian star, is back in New York from England where she had her own TV show. She says, "That is the first time I have seemed easy to myself on television, and I guess that's because it was my own program . . ."

Lennie Hayton is Miss Horne's husband and musical director. Duke Ellington is one of her three idols.

Her son Teddy lives in California and has two infant sons. Her daughter, Gail, gave birth to a baby girl several weeks ago.

Miss Horne comes from Brooklyn; her husband from the East Side, "and although we also have a little house in Palm Springs now, we really prefer New York." Having grown up alone, she is more than pleased with family life and her grandchildren.

● Victor Borge, whose Comedy in Music began in 1953 and is still running strong, wishes he could give up his $500,000 farm in Connecticut. He may bequeath it to the University of Connecticut.

From his hen-farm he has made an estimated $20,000,000. According to one source of information, he has a guarantee of $10,000 a performance as against 65% of the gross. His partner, Leonid Hambro, never talks on-stage.

● Sophia Loren says she found it "difficult to depart from Israel. I am leaving with great sorrow."

The Italian star said she always gets attached to the crews she works for. She has promised to come to the premiere of Judith if her work permitted.

● Finishing her commitment in Hollywood, Senta Berger will go to Israel to play the lead in The Day of His Death, first German film to be produced in the Jewish state. Filming, which will be in German, will start early this month.

● Mike Nichols will direct Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton in, Who's Afraid of Virginai Woolf?

Tailor Rocking Audiences

Once Upon A Tailor, which has opened at the Colonnade Theater this past Tuesday and will run till Saturday, January 16th, is proving to be the funniest production of the season. Produced by Maurice Krowitz of Concept Productions and directed by Baruch Lumet who wrote the comedy and plays the leading role, others in the cast are: Sylvia Lennick; Nadia Salnick; Roman Perdes; Marcia Diamond; Ben Lennick; David Britton; Anne Maklin.

A gentle hint: The 200-seat Colonnade Theater is just the perfect place for an organization to run a fund-raising project; and Once Upon A Tailor is just the perfect project to consider.

Canadian Ballet Unique

Now performing at O'Keefe Center to capacity audiences, the National Ballet of Canada has another week to run here. With a number of performances as varied as the artists are versatile, the Ballet has ushered in the New Year with a flourish.

A highlight is La Sylphide, featuring Erik Bruhn of the Royal Danish Ballet School, who is generally acknowledged as one of the greatest male dancers of recent decades.

La Sylphide, presented for the first time this season, is not to be confused with Les Sylphides. The former is an early 19th century classic inspired by an old Scottish ballad and is considered one of the great classic masterpieces rarely presented on this continent. It originally was produced in Paris in 1834.

TORONTO B'NAI B'RITH SPONSORS GALA "AMBASSADOR'S BALL" JANUARY 19TH

For the first time since its introduction as the outstanding social and cultural event in the life of the Jewish Community of Toronto, the "Ambassador's Ball' will this year be under the sponsorship of the Bnai B'rith Organization of Toronto. Through the years, this distinguished occasion has achieved an unparalleled reputation in Toronto and indeed throughout Canada as an event of singular significance, when emissaries of Foreign Governments are presented formally to His Excellency, the Ambassador of Israel to Canada, as a symbol of international friendship and goodwill between Canada, Israel, and the democracies whose diplomats are represented in Toronto.

In addition, the "Ambassador's Ball" affords the opportunity for the people of the community who have made a direct contribution to the welfare of Israel through the Israel Bond effort, to join in celebration at an event which underscores the privilege of participating in the re-building and growth of the young State of Israel.

An unique and moving ceremony of Presentation will be the focal point of interest at the commencement of the Ball, when the lovely young "Daughters of Israel's Independence" will be formally presented to Ambassador Gershon Avner.

These young ladies, the daughters of Toronto B'nai B'rith families, are linked through birth to the establishment of the State of Israel, for they were born in 1948 — the year of Israel's Statehood.

Leading personalities in the "Ambassador's Ball" Committee are: Chairman, Nathan Hurwich; Co-Chairman, Mrs. Robert Strom; Publicity, Mel Finkelstein; Decorations, Jack Sadoff; Contact, Claude Abrams; Escort, Fred Bookman; Quotas, Max Mayzel; Cotillion, Mrs. Saul Nisker; Refreshments, Dave Kofsky.

Over-all Israel Bond Chairmen for B'nai B'rith are Harry Frank, for Lodges, and Mrs. Charles Kay, for Chapters.

APPOINTED CHAIRMAN — Mr. Samuel Shainhouse, active member of the executive of the Associated Hebrew Day Schools of Toronto, who has been appointed chairman of the membership committee. Leads United France against amnesty for Nazi Criminals: President De Gaulle.

HISTORIC SESSION IN FRENCH PARLIAMENT

By MAURICE CARR

PARIS. — By a vote of 417 to zero, the National Assembly abolished the Statute of Limitations on genocide and all other crimes against humanity.

This is a domestic measure which, it was stressed in the debate, France is adopting as the first step towards securing an international convention on the same lines.

More specifically, according to parliamentarians' request, the French Government will now make a demarche in Bonn calling upon the Federal Republic to follow the French example.

Sponsored jointly by the anti-Gaullist rapporteur of the National Assembly's Commission, Paul Coste Floret, and Gaullist Deputy Speaker Schmittlein, the bill was endorsed in grave speeches by Justice Minister Foyer, Gaullist Deputy Sanson and Communist Deputy Madame Vaillant Couturier. The last-named introduced, but then, at the Minister's request, withdrew as superfluous, an amendment qualifying "crimes against humanity" with the phrase "wherever and whenever committed."

For the first time in the memory of veteran French parliamentary correspondents, a Communist orator was applauded by the entire Chamber.

Also unprecedented was this unanimous vote on a political issue although, as one Deputy explained to your correspondent in the lobby afterwards, "This was a question of principle and morality above politics."

The bill now goes to the Senate where it is assured of unanimous ratification.

Observers here have expressed the hope that members of the Bundestag will read and take a lesson from the verbatim report of one of the briefest, most eloquent and most significant debates in French parliamentary history.

WORLD ZIONIST CONGRESS FACES SERIOUS PROBLEMS

JERUSALM (JCNFS) — The twenty-sixth Zionist Congress, which opened in Jerusalem on Wednesday, is well placed to take the long view.

Relative quiet reigns on Israel's borders (though occasional skirmishes continue to create diplomatic problems) and large-scale hostilities in the Middle East are unlikely in the foreseeable future.

The present Israeli Prime Minister is only too glad to co-operate with the Zionist movement and is doing his best to minimise organisational jealousies and ideological frictions.

And yet Zionism faces a crisis. It no longer attracts people of the calibre it once did particularly from the younger generation.

Both the Israeli public and "establishment," as well as Jewish communities abroad, take the movement and organisation less seriously than before.

The remedy is in the movement's own hands and the Jerusalem Congress will be judged by the way it tackles this matter.

Sweeping generalisations will not help much at this stage. The Zionist movement will be judged by what it does and primarily by its ability to put its own house in order.

There is a good deal of costly and wasteful duplication, not only between the Jewish Agency and State but also between different departments inside the Agency and the World Zionist Organisation. Political parties and vested interests are as strongly entrenched in the Zionist apparatus in Israel as in the Government and public sector generally.

Organisation, ideas and phraseology still sometimes reflect the movement's finest hour rather than the climate and problems of the nineteen sixties.

If the Zionist Congress can tackle these questions pragmatically and realistically, it will do much to enhance the movement's reputation.

GOLDMANN OPPOSES MERGER WITH HERUT

TEL AVIV (CJN). — Nahum Goldmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, told the newspaper, Maariv, that he is opposed to a merger of the Liberal Party with Herut, now being discussed by the official leadership of both parties. Dr. Goldmann said that he cannot accept Heruts "German policy".

Herut opposed the reparations deal with Germany, predicting that the Germans would consider it a release from their responsibility for what happened during World War II.

BONDS HONOUR MURRAY EHRLICK AT SPORTSMEN'S LODGE EVENT

The State of Israel Bond Organization of Toronto will honour Murray Ehrlick, outstanding B'nai B'rith and community leader, at a special Sportsmen's Lodge, B'nai B'rith "Evening of Entertainment" which will take place on Tuesday evening, January 12th, at Adath Israel Synagogue. Even before he headed a B'nai B'rith fact-finding tour of Israel a year ago, Mr. Ehrlick had established himself as a dedicated and articulate spokesman on behalf of Israel's economic upbuilding. While there, he saw for himself the tremendous developments financed by Israel Bond dollars which are daily changing the face and future of the young State, and he gained fresh insight into the need for intensified community efforts to advance the Israel Bond program.

Mr. Ehrlick holds many positions of executive rank in community endeavours including membership on the Board of Directors of the Men's Service Group of the Jewish Home for the Aged, the Y.M.H.A., and B'Nai B'rith District no. 1. Currently Mr. Ehrlick is serving as Secretary of B'nai B'rith District 22, and Chairman for New Lodges.

A highlight of the "Evening of Entertainment" will be the appearance of Julius Sokoloff, well-known Yiddish humourist, whose unusual gifts as a raconteur have made him a much sought-after personality at major community events.

The Committee in charge of arrangements for the Sportsmen's Lodge Testimonial evening include President, Eddie Goldman; Israel Bond Chairman, Lou Zeifman; Programme Chairman Sam Rosen; and Lou Abrams, Sportsmen's Lodge member on the B'nai B'rith Israel Bond Cabinet.

Hillel Dan Trial

TEL AVIV. (CJN). — The district court here began hearings on the case of Hillel Dan, well known Mapai leader and formerly top executive of the Histadrut's Solel Boneh Construction Company.

Mr. Dan complains against an income assessment of 355,000 pounds ($118,000,00).

He had received 750,000 pounds for the sale of his stock in a private company which is building the Shalom Tower skyscraper here. He did not pay taxes on this income.

Mr. Dan, former managing director of Solel Boneh, contends that the sale represented only a capital gain and should not be taxable. He also claims that he had received "only" 60,000 pounds during the last tax year while the remainder of the sale was given to him in bonds and notes, not in cash.

Also it has become known that Mr. Dan had received 60,000 pounds severance pay from the Histadrut-owned Solel Boneh Company.

The Mapai leader is now director of the Shalom Towers skyscraper.

INDEPENDENT PRESS

THE CANADIAN JEWISH NEWS ENTERS SIXTH YEAR

This issue of The Canadian Jewish News is the first in its sixth year of continuous, uninterrupted publication.

To reach the beginning of Volume VI of any newspaper on the North American continent under present conditions —when publishing has become a very expensive proposition and many old, established newspapers on the continent are being forced out of business— is no mean achievement. Especially is it an accomplishment in the Jewish community if one considers the fact that The Canadian Jewish News is a truly independent newspaper neither supported nor subsidized, directly or indirectly, by any group, organization or political party.

We feel it is this independence of spirit that has made The Canadian Jewish News the most widely read Jewish publication in Canada.

In its sixth year, The Canadian Jewish News will continue this policy of serving the Jewish community and the nation at large with the same dedication of purpose and a profound, intransigent loyalty to what we believe to be the truth

LABOR HISTADRUT

THE PEOPLE'S CAMPAIGN

Since the Herut Party, once the most outspoken opponent of the Histadrut, has joined Israel's General Confederation of Labor, Histadrut has ceased to be a subject for partisan debate in Israel. It now has become the organization of labor embracing all toilers—irrespective of their political affiliation, right or left. With more than a million members, Histadrut today represents the working people of Israel.

Histadrut, which began as a labor union and has grown to one of the most powerful trade union movements in the world, is also a pioneering organization in the field of industry and the economic development of the young nation. Wherever private capital is hesitant to invest or to risk funds, Histadrut, in the spirit of halutziut, enters the field and helps in the promotion and establishment of industries necessary for the further development of the country.

Simultaneously, Histadrut operates institutions of charity and assists in the integration of immigrants. It builds villages for newcomers, it establishes trade schools, it furthers the cultural progress of Israel.

Thus, here in Toronto as well as anywhere else in the free world, Jewish communities support the Histadrut Drive which is a people's campaign in the truest sense of the word, a campaign to strengthen Israel, its economy and its spirit.

TORONTO'S UJA —

QUESTIONS NOT ANSWERED

During the past weeks, several letters to the editor have been published in these columns, written by leading members of our community who discussed the relative merits of the United Jewish Appeal. The most important of these communications were, in our opinion, those by Henry S. Rosenberg, Q.C., and John R. Devor.

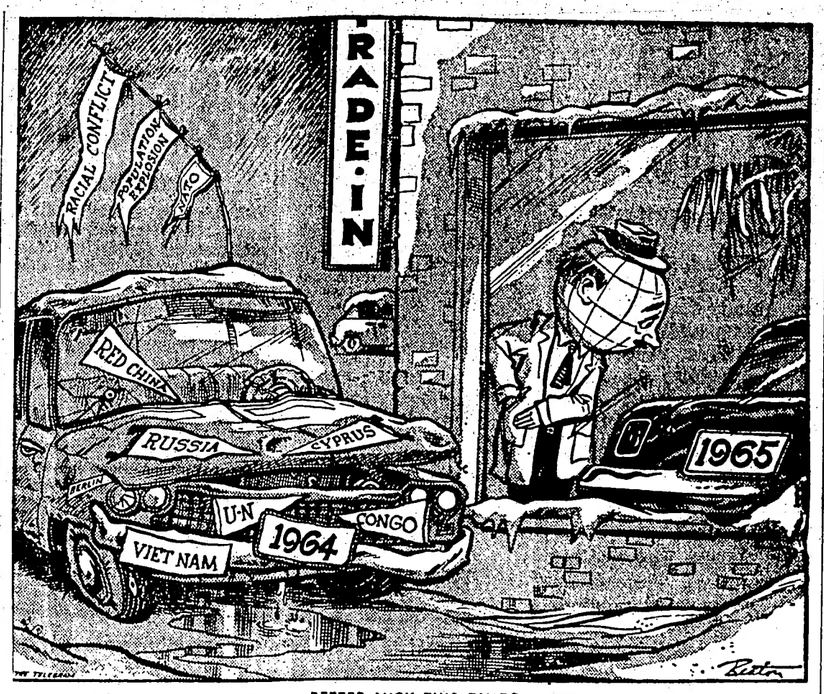
The crux of the problem debated by our correspondents was: is the United Jewish Appeal, as it functions now, up-to-date or outmoded? Furthermore, the question was raised, whether the leadership of Toronto's United Jewish Appeal has the right to distribute funds to institutions "not belonging" in the area of activity for which said funds are collected.

The queries, however, remain unanswered: Are the funds properly allocated? Are there TOO MANY intermediaries between the donor and recipient? Should, for example, a political organization be subsidized from charity funds or should its expenses be paid by the members who want such an organization?

We believe that the theme of the appeal to which the people respond is essentially in the field of (a) Jewish education and (b) aid to newcomers in Israel. If a situation arises where there are no funds for Jewish schools—while there is an adequate amount of money for organizations not relevant to the theme of the appeal—the public begins to ignore the campaign, leaving the fundraising to those few who also are the distributors.

We regretfully note that none of the correspondents who have replied to the complaint of Henry S. Rosenberg, Q.C., has touched upon the essence of his statement concerning monies spent by only one organization. The majority of the Jewish community is of the opinion that both Jewish education and help to refugees merit first consideration.

Unless the leadership of Toronto's UJA realizes this, it will become increasingly isolated from the total community.



BETTER LUCK THIS TIME?

CRY AND ENJOY

A visiting Yiddish troupe which came from New York to the mid-western city starred a prominent actress, and the show attracted a full house. The play was about one of those awful tragedies in which misfortune follows misfortune. Everybody in the audience, especially the women, wept bitterly, except Hayyim Cohen. He made sarcastic remarks audibly to his wife about the play's lack of realism, its absurd melodramatic technique, about its appeal to low human instincts. At one point he laughed out loud. This bothered a woman who was sitting nearby.

"If you don't like the play," she said, wiping her eyes, why don't you get out and let others enjoy themselves?"

TOO GOOD

The doctor was called to the East Side to examine a baby. After going over the little one carefully, he said to the mother:

"Your child is very sick. But don't worry. If you watch the baby constantly and follow my prescription faithfully, it will be out of danger."

As the doctor was leaving, he was struck by the abject poverty. Unnoticed, he left five dollars for medicine.

When the doctor called the next day, the mother said:

"It was so nice of you to have left the money. We had a chance to call in a specialist."

KING' ENGLISH

After explaining the Passover lesson, the Sabbath School teacher asked some pupils to use the word matzas in a sentence.

"We eat matzas at the Seder," said Jerry.

"Matzas are made without salt," said Ruby.

"Time matzas on," volunteered Abie.

Extreme Right Rises In Germany

by JOHN DORNBERG

BONN — West Germany's radical rightists are making a final, desperate bid to come in from the political cold.

After years of factionalism, internal strife, and personal rivalries, more than 700 of the most notorious right-wingers have just met in Hanover to declare their loyalty to one another and launch a new party.

According to the optimistic predictions of its founders, the National Democratic Party (NDP) will serve as a rallying point and as a haven for "patriotic, nationalistically spirited" Germans who are dissatisfied with the "indecisiveness and do-nothingness" of the government and the major parties.

"This will be our year," boasted the NDP's freshly-chosen leader, Friedrich Thielen, 48, a conservative member of the Bremen city-state provincial legislature.

Optimistic as the right-wingers sound, astute political observers here view the party more as a defensive than an offensive action. It is the outgrowth of the frustration that has beset Germany's right wing ever since it saw internal dissension divide the ultra-conservative vote into meaningless percentiles spread over a dozen special interest groups.

Will the new group bridge the ideological and personal gaps?

It seems doubtful, especially in view of the personalities who have joined it and the fact that the old rightwing parties will not be abolished or fused with the NDP and dual membership will be permitted.

The tone which the delegates to the NDP's founding convention set in Hanover's Doehrener Maschpark beerhall — traditional hangout of all German radical rightists — was frightening enough.

But it stood in surprising contrast with the personalities on hand.

NO FIRE-BRANDS

Though, as one functionary admitted, "some medal-wearing nuts did manage to get in", the new party's leaders are not neo-Nazis, nor will it be easy to label very many of them as "old Nazis". There were no gaudy uniforms, no real firebrands, and the entire clambake lasted exactly one hour and twelve minutes.

Thielen, a veteran of World War II navy service, is actually one of the original founders of Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democratic Union (CDU) in Bremen. He defected to the more conservative German Party (DP), which he still represents as a provincial legislator, in the 1950s. Though it is on the far right of the political spectrum, the now virtually defunct DP has never been dangerously close to the line of extremism.

The NDP's first vice chairman is Adolf von Thadden, 42, a former Wehrmacht tank officer who as chairman of the considerably more radical, and non-insignificant, German Reich Party (DRP) has consistently tried to steer Germany's far right to unity and a position just inside the boundaries of respectability.

The new party's second vice-chairman will be Wilhelm Guttman, 65, an old-time functionary of the Bloc of Expellees and Victims of Injustice (BHE), the political grouping of refugees and expellees from the eastern territories (Silesia, Prussia, Pomerania, Sudetenland) which once was powerful enough to become one of Chancellor Adenauer's coalition parties but is now also defunct.

The third vice-chairman will be Heinrich Fassbender, 65, for eight years a member of the German Bundestag's Free Democratic Party (FDP) faction which is still in coalition with the CDU.

Moderately conservative as the new party's leadership appears to be, its platform and some of the convention speeches sounded more brim-stony and hell-fiery and undoubtedly rang as sweet music in the ears of ultra-conservatives.

Key-note speech

On hand as keynote speaker was Prof. Dr. Berthold Rubin, 53, professor of ancient history at Cologne University who has emerged, in recent years, as the old faithful intellectual of all German rightist activities. Rubin is to Germany's right-wing what the John Birch Society's Prof. Revilo P. Oliver is to the ultra-conservatives in the U.S.

The delegates heard such appeals as "Germany for Germans," "down with the press and radio monopolists who distort facts and poison our minds," "put an end to the foreign demands for atonement and German shame — ours in not a history of which we should be ashamed," "we need soldiers with a sene of duty, honour and country," "long live our fatherland."

What is significant about the new party is that its founding members do not represent the real neo-Nazi lunatic fringe in West Germany. Not registered in Hanover, for example, were delegates from the Deutsche Gemeinschaft (German Association — DG) party, the German Freedom Party (DFP) or the German National People's Party (DNVP).

If they continue to remain on the outside, the new party will turn out to be little more than a German Reich Party with a new name and a few ultra-conservatives from the respectable parties thrown in for variety.

Factionalism grows

Though the actual number of radical right groups and parties has increased since then, their total membership has decreased — a sure sign of mounting factionalism and strife. Many of the political parties of the extreme right have only a handful of members and have recruited no new ones in a decade.

The danger of dissension was seen clearly by the new party's leaders in Hanover. At the close of the convention, the NDP's freshly

JEWS IN U.S.S.R.

The latest official figures on the Jewish population of the USSR, as compiled by the Soviet Bureau of Statistics, have appeared in the Warsaw Yiddish paper, Folkshtimme. They consist of percentages of the total population in each district, not of absolute figures.

The highest proportion of Jews in the Soviet Union is in the Chernowitz district — 20.4 per cent — followed by the cities of Kiev and Kishinev, with 19.9 per cent each. Odessa district has 14.8 per cent, Vinnitza 11.5 per cent, Gomel 11 per cent, Mohilev 7.6 per cent, Leningrad has 5.6 per cent, Moscow 4.7, Minsk 7.6, Vilna 6.9 and Riga 5.0 per cent.

Seventy-five per cent of the Jews of Kaunas said Yiddish was their mother tongue. In Vilna the figure was 70 per cent, in Riga 48, and in Tashkent 37 per cent.

SERMON FOR THE WEEK

DIVINE ATTRIBUTES

God spoke to Moses and said to him, "I am the Lord; I appeared to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob as El Shaddai, but by My name YHWH was I not known to them". (Exodus 6, 2-3.)

The opening verses of this week's Sidra represent God's reply to Moses when the latter complained after his first mission to Pharaoh ended in failure. In our text God's name is submitted in two forms, and each one points to a different aspect of the Divine nature. It is the second name which represents God as the protector of Israel who will redeem the people from Egypt's oppression.

Every student of Bible criticism knows how the 19th century critics, taking hold of the fact that God has various names in the Pentateuch, separated the sections under the classification of the various names and taught that each section had a different author. Many centuries before this, however, the Jewish teachers understood that the different names of God express a different aspect of His power and attributes in the appropriate context in which that particular name is recorded. Thus "Elohim" is used to indicate God in his attribute of creativeness and power, "Shaddai" best connotes God's oneness, while "WHWH" is used chiefly to describe the Divine justice, mercy and immanence.

The subject of God's attributes was a long and difficult problem to the Jewish philosophers, who were afraid that such descriptions are necessarily attended by physical characteristics which of course cannot be ascribed to God. Maimonides, for example, refused to define what God "is". We can only rightly say what He is "not", which is more than a mere quibbling with words since it acknowledges an inability to know God. "If I know Him, I would be Him!" declared the 15th century philosopher Joseph Albo.

On the other hand, God has to be described in terms readily understood by men and it is here that the human concept of God is always subjective, in relation to the experience man has of the Divine influence. Our religious literature describes God as "The God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob", if to stress that each one of them had to find and experience God in his own way. And the way of each of us is different.

For the writer of Psalm 23, God is like a shepherd exercising loving care over each of his creatures. For Isaiah, He is the transcendent supernatural power. To Amos, God is the uncompromising source of strict righteousness. To a Hosea, God is love and compassion. "The voice of the Law is in strength", declares the psalmist; on which a rabbi comments, "according to the different strength or capacity of every man" so shall God be envisioned.

Zechariah, one of the last prophets, holds aloft the great hope that in the Messianic age human knowledge and wisdom will have developed to such an ideal that all mankind will come to recognise the truth of the Only One God, and all experience will be recognised as manifestations of the Divine influence in shaping the spiritual goal of human history. Thus we hopefully declare, "In that day shall the Lord be One and His Name One".

letters to the editor

DEPLORES IGNORANCE OF JUDAISM

Since Toronto's educational institutions are admired and envied throughout the North American continent, it was with shock and distress that I read in The Canadian Jewish News (November 13, 1964) about the attempt of the United Jewish Welfare Fund to close the long established Dovercourt Talmud Torah in downtown Toronto.

Apparently the professionals managing the Fund are ignorant of basic teachings of Judaism: Financial considerations and calculations must never be a deciding factor in depriving Jewish children of a Jewish education. Our Rabbis of Old taught that a community must make every effort to assure especially the Torah education of the less fortunate children.

Does the responsibilities and duties to the majority excuse a community of its sacred obligations to the minority? Must the remaining Jewish children in the less affluent part of Toronto be refused a Jewish education because most Jews have already moved up north? In a time when there is much talk and concern regarding the vanishing American Jew, how can the recognized community body of Toronto Jewry support and condone unpardonable injustices against Jewish children who eagerly seek a Jewish education?

All those wonderful and dedicated Jews who have taken immediate, courageous action to assure Torah education for all Toronto children are to be congratulated. With their unselfish sacrifice for this holy cause, they have written another illustrious chapter in the history of Toronto Jewry.

The Canadian Jewish News should be commended for its bold and outspoken editorial concerning the disgraceful matter. It deserves much praise in the furtherance of Jewish education.

ENCORE: JEWISH FUNDRAISING

Dear Editor:

I felt that I ought to bring a few of the facts of life about fund raising to the attention of yourself and your readers in view of your editorial comments in the issue of December 11th, "How to Raise Funds." After all, your views are based on a subjective opinion, which unlike one of the exact sciences, are open to question based on an opposing point of view and a set of facts and figures.

Let me state at the outset that I have done volunteer campaigning for U.J.A., United Appeal, and the J.N.F., and will continue to do so despite the criticisms which are voiced each year about the techniques used by these organizations, some of which have validity in certain areas, only. With all their imperfections, which by the way plague as well, the Bond Organization, Histadruth, and a host of other fund raising appeals, until some better method of soliciting money to meet human needs is evolved, I am for unified fund raising as opposed to multiple campaigns.

Beneath the surface of your editorial there lies the implication that the administrative costs of U.J.A. are out of proportion to the funds raised, whereas in your own words, the J.N.F. "a relatively small organization" did much better percentagewise, and in your own words again, "with a minimum of expense."

Does this mean that professional and secretarial salaries in preparation for a Negev Dinner are to be discounted, or the cost of providing dinner for 1,400 people is no mean expense, or the printing of an elaborate book of contributors is done gratis?

Now, as to how U.J.A. funds are to be apportioned to their beneficiary agencies, which was criticized in both David Bloom's and Henry S. Rosenberg's letters, I have but one comment to offer. Though I agree that there are many needless expenditures by the Zionist Organization on the local, regional, and national scenes, until such time as it is the policy of the campaign organization, namely, the United Jewish Welfare Fund, to dictate to its constituent organizations how the proceeds of the campaign should be spent, it is the duty of the U.J.A. contributors to question the Zionist Organization whether Young Judea Clubs, Summer Camps, or Ideological Conferences really serve the State of Israel in any tangible way.

And finally, I reaffirm my faith, despite its weaknesses, in joint campaigning for a variety of worthy causes with one overall campaign machinery, to that of a host of drives, each with its own staff, publicity, and campaign costs. The crux of the matter lies in the fact that not enough money is being raised by any of the major campaigns, however, this does not prove that the organizational structures are at fault.

a poem by a Jewish martyr

How dismally the day
Screams out and blasts the night.
What disaster you will say,
To start another fight.

See how heaven shows dismay
As her stars are scared away;
As the sun ascends with might
With his hot and awful light.

He shows us babies crying
We see the black boy dying
We close our eyes and choke our sighs
And look into the dreadful skies.

Then peacefully the night
Puts out the reddened day
And the jaws that used to bite
Are sterile where we lay.

The poem above written by one of three civil rights workers killed last summer in Mississippi was published for the first time.

Titled "A Corollary to A. E. Housman's 'To an Athlete Dying Young,'" the verse was written by a Jewish boy, Andrew Goodman, 20, of New York, last spring while he was a student at Queens College, New York. It appears in the winter issue of The Massachusetts Review, an arts and literature journal published at the University of Massachusetts.

Nail-Biting

DR. ROSE N. FRANZBLAU

QUESTION: I am in my early 30s and have a wonderful husband, lovely children, loving parents and brothers. I was professionally employed before having children and I plan to return to my field of work some day.

Ever since childhood I have been a nail-biter, but now it seems to be more compulsive. I am unhappy at the thought that my children may emulate this habit. I have spoken about it to my doctor (an internist). He minimized it. But it really troubles me. What causes nail-biting? Can I help myself overcome it?

ANSWER: At the beginning of life, the two senses that bring the greatest satisfactions and reassurances are the oral and the tactile ones.

The crying infant is relieved of his discomfort and reassured and gratified through being cuddled and patted. The tension caused by hunger is gratified through the mouth. The sucking on the nipple, or being given a pacifier, quiets and satisfies the "mouth itch," which is present in all infants.

The older child, left alone, becomes somewhat fearful and keeps herself company by sucking her thumb. This is a part of the body that will always be there and never become smaller no matter how much it is sucked or chewed.

Sometimes, the child doesn't get enough of what she wants, and is made to eat things she doesn't like because the parent says they are good for her. This arouses anger and resentment and makes her want to bite them, as she bites on the food which is forced upon her.

As the child grows and develops, she learns from experience that biting is a form of fighting. From biting and chewing, the child derives a sense of power and mastery.

Children who are not permitted to express anger, or are made to feel very guilty for showing hostility toward loved ones, turn the anger in on themselves, biting their own nails or chewing on their lips or cheeks, even to the point of bleeding.

Since boys in their growing years have more socially acceptable substitute outlets for expressing anger and hostility, like punching a bag, hitting at a ball with a bat or kicking it, nail-biting is less common among them.

Children who have been nail-biters during their earlier years usually give up the habit in adolescence. The drive to be attractive and wanted and accepted becomes greater than the need to punish oneself.

When habits like biting one's nails, overeating or picking on one's face continue into adult life, the person still has some fear of expressing opinions that are different from those of others and that might bring disapproval.

Nail-biting carries with it some disapproval from family and friends, but it also brings a measure of sympathy and reassurance from the very same close ones.

If you are truly unhappy with this habit, and cannot give it up by yourself, an expert could help you ventilate some of these hostilities.

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Jennie Grossinger of the Grossinger Country Club, Grossinger, N.Y., has been notified that a Jennie Grossinger Dining Hall will be established at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. It will be the fourth project in Israel named in her honor. There is a Jennie Grossinger Medical Center in Tel Aviv, a Jennie Grossinger Rest Home and Convalescent Center in Safed, and a Jennie Grossinger Forest in Mount Carmel.

ISRAEL PAYS TO GERMAN ORDER

STUTTGART (JCNS) — Israel has paid 54 million marks in compensation for properties of the German Order of Templars on Israeli territory left behind by members of the Order during the last war.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

CHICKEN LIVERS DE MA TANTE ROSE

1 lb. chicken livers
3 tablespoons parve oleo
½ lb. sliced mushrooms
1½ tablespoons flour
½ cup rich beef stock
½ cup dry red wine
A little salt & pepper

Salt and broil the livers a little bit on each side, so they should be Kosher. Rinse off from them the salt and in the melted oleo, you'll saute the livers for about 2 minutes. Put in next the mushrooms and flour and for another 3 minutes you'll saute and stir so the flour gets nice and brown. Now pour in the rich beef stock and wine and sprinkle in a little salt and pepper so your food should have a nice flavor. Put a cover on the pan and you'll simmer everything together for about 15 minutes. If you serve this on rice, the rice will soak up all that good gravy. This is a healthy dish with lots of nourishment; and if you tell the kids there's wine cooked in, they'll be glad to eat the livers. Serves 3 or 4 iron-starved kids.

*MA TANTE ROSE: when you were a kid, she's the one who always said, "You're too pale! Your mother should give you some iron!"

MILK AND HONEY

BY RUTHIE

So now some of the hotels in Israel are up in the air because for some reason or other their kashrut (adhering to rabbinical laws on food) and other observances are being questioned.

Right off, let me say that I have no intentions of discussing this issue. That's for the experts. Sometimes you feel, though, that any kind of confusion is inevitable.

Have you ever been a guest in a first-rate Israeli hotel? Mamanyu, ma' kenn meshooga verren (mother, you can go crazy)!

First of all, the tourists barge in in bunches and fall all over like vultures. Everybody asks questions at the same time, and wants answers at the same time. Baggage spills over everywhere. No matter how good the service, someone is bound to have lost something.

But, when all is calm—then you have a picnic. You can always spot tourists chiefly by their absence. Before you're even up for breakfast, they're already eaten and are out sightseeing.

Of course, that's as it should be. But when they're in the lobby, oh boy! You should see some of them.

Everybody else is brushed aside. Only their interests seem important. And their opinions always are emphatic. They sit and jabber about Israel: they either like it or are disappointed. And they let you know it.

(Also, they're always windowshopping. The more they can bring home from Israel, the more yikhuss (prestige) they'll have in the eyes of their neighbours.)

(Naturally the majority suffers for the few. So we're all included when I say that what makes us unpleasant to most Israelis is our conceit and smugness.)

Hotels were built chiefly for comfort and to please. Yet if some visitors find a place that's the last word in decor, they're astonished.

In one such hotel I came across two women strolling on the terrace.

This particular place is gorgeous. The umbrella-topped tables and chairs are new; the swimming pool, kidney shaped; a miniature golf course is at one's disposal.

One of the women couldn't contain herself. "Look," she pointed, "they have tables and chairs!"

Well, just what did she expect? Maybe some of her broken down relics that she'd sent as a donation?

In another hotel I was witness to a different type of conceit.

You know how it is dinnertime. We're all dressed in our best.

Among the guests was a couple who stood out—only because I noticed everyone in that group making it a duty to greet them.

Well, I thought, they must be important. Anyhow, they were impeccably dressed: he, wearing a white dinner jacket; she, in black chiffon. And on her finger was a diamond like an electric bulb( something every female notices).

People waved, hi, across the diningroom (manners?); whoever passed by stopped to chat.

They looked like good spenders. (Frankly, I think that's all they were.)

The piece de resistance came during dessert.

Everyone knows that coffee isn't one of Israel's chief commodities. But, you're there — so baligay (manage).

Not this couple. Right under everyone's gaze madame took out of her purse a jar of an American-brand coffee and set it right in the middle of the table.

Ned and I were about the only ones appalled by such lack of taste. At any rate, I fergin (don't begrudge) her the "bigness".

There's a hotel which caters to the intellectual as well as the wealthy. It's very lush and dignified. Many diplomats stop there, some from African countries.

Imagine, when one man walked over to a stately-looking envoy, thrust out his hand and said,

"Shalom" (the only Hebrew word he knew, I bet), "I'm from Tennessee. I'm the president of my (whatever) chapter, president of the shool's men's club, vice president of this, secretary of that."

And the poor diplomat had to stand and smile for maybe a half-hour, trying to conceal his annoyance at having his privacy invaded.

Also, at the same hotel, I noticed Ned was kind of chipper. Finally I got a few words out of him.

"See that blonde? Coming down, she was in the same elevator as I. You should see her look me up and down, wondering, maybe, if I'm available."

My scathing look squelched that.

Of course, most tourists are pretty wonderful. They sincerely are anxious to make friends among their hosts and they go back home inspired.

Still ,it takes just a few to make life interesting.

THE NUTCRACKER: Land of Fantasy and Beauty

by BARBARA I. PEARL

Every child, both young and adult, should be subjected to the fancies and dreams that belong only to fairyland, as portrayed in The Nutcracker, one of the ballets performed this week by the National Ballet of Canada at O'Keefe Center.

The Nutcracker is pure fancy—not so well known as Cinderella perhaps, but in all its simplicity just as beautiful.

A little girl Clara receives a nutcracker doll on Christmas Eve. Excited, despite the doll's ugliness, she cannot sleep. She returns to the dark livingroom that, fairytale-fashion, expands to become a battlefield. Toy soldiers under the command of the Nutcracker are in battle with an army of mice. With Clara's help, the Nutcracker wins. Thereupon he is transformed into a handsome prince.

Clara and her Prince journey to the Land of Snow. They arrive at the Palace of the Sugar Plum Fairy in the Kingdom of Sweets. Clara tells about her adventures; she is given a huge cake. The candies and flowers dance. Then she returns to her own home, refreshed and happy.

Yolande Sadlowski as the daughter Clara is a gem. Proud, poised, she can be an inspiration to every youngster.

Frank Schaufuss, member of the illustrious Danish Ballet and a guest here, is phenomenal as Prince. Fluid, supple, graceful, precise, he kneads the art of terpsichore to perfection.

Martine van Hamel made a lovely, elegant Snow Queen and Sugar Plum Fairy, sure of herself and certain of every twist and turn.

Scenes were colorful and breathtaking: sedate, aristocratic drawingroom; cool, crisp, blue-white icicles; brown-orange-green fairy palace.

Tchaikowsky's Nutcracker Suite would be among the top ten of the Classical Hit Parade if only more were aware of this lovely fairytale.

ISRAEL EXHIBITION IN MOSCOW

crowned chairman said:

"A tight organization will be the key to success. We will have no room for men with personal ambitions or querulous complainers who will only drive a wedge between us."

Are Germany's moderates and liberals worried about the new threat?

"On the basis of our experience once in this century with a party that started with less people and on less money, it would be foolhardy to ignore those people," said one CDU official. "But at the moment I can't say we're frightened. I think they should be watched closely."
